The application's interface resembles the TP-Link website, so it is easy to see the current settings of the connection and adjust them manually. You can view detailed information on the status of your router as well as use the configuration settings to set up a wireless network. * Interval between updates The TL-W8961ND offers automatic updates of the device's firmware, so you never have to worry about getting a new firmware version. The application offers the convenience of updating the firmware via the wireless network. In other words, you do not need to download it and extract it manually. The firmware update will be transferred to the device automatically, thus saving you the trouble of unplugging the router or connecting it to a computer.
